The 49ers defense was everywhere, only allowing the Giants offense 10 first downs the entire game, and only one touchdown. The 49ers offense was clicking, like it has been all season. Brock Purdy went 25-37 for 310 yards and two touchdowns. The NFC offense player of the month Christian McCaffery ran for 85 yards on 18 carries, scoring one touchdown. The San Francisco 49ers won 30-12 and improved to three wins and zero losses on the season. Sunday Night Football kicked off with the Las Vegas Raiders hosting the Pittsburgh Steelers. Raiders Quarterback Jimmy Garoppolo threw for 324 yards for 28 completions on 44 passing attempts. Garoppolo had two passing touchdowns, both of them going to wide receiver Davante Adams. Along with those two touchdowns, Adams also had 13 receptions for 172 yards. The Steelers defense came up huge for a second straight week. T.J. Watt had two sacks and the steelers had three interceptions, with Patrick Peterson getting the game clinching pick. The Steelers beat the Raiders 23-18. Monday Night Football produced another doubleheader. The Philadelphia Eagles played the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Jalen Hurts threw for 277 yards on 23-37 completions and one touchdown. Buccaneers Quarterback Baker Mayfield had 146 yards passing with a touchdown and an interception. The Eagles running game was in full force against the Buccaneers, rushing for 201 yards and victory 25-11. Philadelphia improved to a three and zero record. The second Monday night game was the Cincinnati Bengals hosting the Los Angeles Rams. Joe Burrow threw for 259 yards on 26-49 completions. Wide receiver Ja'Marr Chase had 141 yards on 12 receptions. Burrow was dealing with a calf injury all week, but decided to play. Rams Quarterback Matthew Stafford went 18-33 for 269 yards. Stafford threw for one touchdown but had two interceptions as well. The Bengals narrowly came out victorious with a 19-16 win over the Rams.
