

Week 5:
Column 1:

Babka and Bialy are a bonded pair and must be adopted together. They are young and playful. Babka is an eight month-old orange tabby and bialy is a six month-old tortoiseshell both of who will need a little playtime in the morning and at night. Bialy is only six and a half pounds, gentle and playful while Babka is ten pounds, talkative and playful but he does get a little rough during playtime. They both love toys including wands, tunnels, scratching posts and they particularly love cat-ios so they can view everything around them. When visiting them Bialy comes right up to the door looking for affection while babka sits at attention as the protector watching you from his cat-io to make sure it is all is well. If you have time and energy for lots of playtime as well love to give Babka and Bialy are ready to receive it.

Column 2:

Billie is a Siberian Husky mix whose previous owner never came forward after being abandoned on the streets. He gets along well with other dogs but particularly with dogs of a similar breed. As the husky breed tends to be aloof he may need some time to warm up to you before he's comfortable giving hugs and kisses. He tends to be too playful with small dogs and wants to chase other companion animals. If he were to be placed in a home with other animals it would be best if there were no small animals. He would love to live somewhere with another doggie friend closer to his size. He does need some training for his manners as he does still act like a puppy and pulls a bit on a leash. He gets a bit nervous being groomed and examined by the vet so muzzle training him for those situations is recommended. Billi has all the makings of a wonderful companion and only needs a little love, time and training to flourish.
