Your Dorm Is Not the Only Place to Study

By: Oliva Cabaleiro

Tired of staying in your dorm room to work on assignments? Sometimes, a change of scenery is all you need to get focused and be productive. Dominican University offers several places to study on campus, including the Archbishop Alemany Library, outdoor spaces, student lounges, and the dining hall.

If you want to get off campus, you can go downtown to coffee shops such as Sana'a Cafe, Pink Owl Coffee, and Aroma Cafe for a change of scenery, while nearby parks offer a chance to enjoy fresh air. The San Rafael Public Library is another option for students who want a quieter place to get work done. Sometimes studying around people can make you work harder, knowing others may look at you for a second, or that you could motivate someone else. Enjoy the chance to see new places.
