John Summit In Bay Area for Two Nights

John Summit, a rising star in the electronic dance music (EDM) scene, has made a significant impact on the house music genre with his unique sound and style. Hailing from Chicago, a city with a rich history in house music, Summit has drawn inspiration from the city's legendary house music culture. He's known for producing tracks that incorporate groovy basslines, infectious melodies, and a touch of old-school house elements, creating a vibe that resonates with both traditional house music fans and contemporary EDM enthusiasts. His energetic and dancefloor-ready tunes have earned him a dedicated following and recognition within the industry. With a string of successful releases and collaborations, John Summit has demonstrated his talent and versatility as a DJ and producer. Lucky enough for San Francisco he will be in the area for two nights. Friday November 3rd he will be at the Frost Amphitheater at Stanford from 6:00 pm to 12:00 am. On Saturday the 4th, he will be holding a block party at the Midway from 2:00pm to 1:00am. San Francisco is lucky to have him in our city for two nights, make sure you see him before he goes back on his worldwide tour. To stay up to date with San Francisco's EDM nightlife, come back next week to the Dominican Beat.

Well written-can we use the pic???
