

Today, I interviewed Sienna Prak-Perry, a Freshman at Dominican University of California. Sienna was born in Hercules, California. She previously attended Berkeley High School. She described the campus atmosphere as positive, welcoming, and natural. At Dominican, Sienna plays for the Women's Lacrosse team. She explained that the determining factor that caused her to play at Dominican was that it is close to home and one of the only D2 lacrosse teams on the West Coast. I asked Sienna if it was hard to balance school life and athletics. She said that it was easier than she thought because all it comes down to is her approach to school every day and lacrosse, mentioning that it's all up to her. Her favorite spot on campus is the grass lawn next to Edgehill Mansion and the bee farm.
