Sylvie Morgan: 1.
Editor: Studying
Weekly Contributor: Best Off Campus Study Spots

What Are The Best Off-Campus Study Spots?

For a college student studying takes up a lot of your time so it is important that you find a place that you enjoy spending time in. College students spend a lot of their time on campus whether they are in class, eating, or just living there. It is sometimes refreshing to get a break and a change of scenery. A new environment can make studying or doing homework feel less repetitive and help you refocus. Here are some suggestions of places off campus that are great for studying. The first one is the Mill Valley Public Library. It is a bit of a drive but well worth it. It is tucked away among the Red Woods which makes it feel disconnected from day to day life. When you walk in you will see how beautiful the building is and how its surroundings create a peaceful atmosphere. There are plenty of little spaces where you can sit alone, focus on your assignments, and get work done without feeling distracted by everything going on around you. The natural environment around you makes it especially appealing for students who need a quiet place to concentrate. This makes it a great option for a study session that hopefully won't feel too tedious. The second place is Aroma Cafe. Not only do they provide a great quiet environment to focus but they also have some great food and drink options which can be important to fuel a study session. Studying for many hours as most college students do can make you feel tired or unmotivated sometimes and having coffee, tea or a little snack can make a huge difference. Aroma Cafe offers a change of scenery from the typical campus study spots and provides students with a great change of pace. Also if you are a person that likes a little background noise to your studying this is a great option. It is a place where you can settle in, get organized, and make progress on your schoolwork while enjoying a good drink and something to eat.

(This is the Mill Valley Public Library)