

“ All Investing isn’t Good Investing ? ”

Jaylen Allen

Editor of Finance, Weekly Contributor of The Health of Wealth

The most important thing we think about when it comes to money is what to do with it. In the previous article, I introduced the idea of investing. However, you might be thinking, “Well Shoot. I know what investing is but aren't there good and bad investments?”. Absolutely! Just like those millions of toys your parents bought you when you were younger, thinking they would make you happy for forever, but only lasted two days before you discarded it and went to the next. Yeah, bad investments if you ask me. With that being said, as I continuously mentioned previously, research is key and most important when it comes to learning what to invest in. However, I will briefly go over the most talked about investment ideas and how you can get started!

The most well-known investment ideas are investing in Real Estate, the Stock Market, Cryptocurrency and Precious Metals. Real estate and the Stock market are the two most popular because of how easily you can invest in them, there are tons of apps that you can download on any of your mobile devices, create an account in less than a few minutes and deposit money straight into the account and invest in whatever you please. Some of the game-changing apps that are user-friendly and personal favorites of mine are apps like Robinhood or Webull. Cryptocurrency and “Precious Metals”, such as gold and silver (Yes, buying gold and silver are actually very popular investments), are a little harder to invest in. They require you to have a good understanding of what they are and how to invest in them specifically as it is different from stocks and real estate. I would suggest staying away from these if you are just beginning your investing journey as they are slightly harder to comprehend. And no, that stainless steel, gold-plated necklace you got from Claire’s isn’t a precious metal and won’t be worth any more later than it is now.

Alright so we covered the most popular types of investments and the platforms that allow you to invest in these “Cash flow assets”, aka investments that make you some good money. “But what about the best stocks? and best real estate? and best of the best things to invest in to become a millionaire by next year?! Stay tuned my friends... Stay tuned.